A Verdict for $100,000 MR. KILBOURN'S SUIT AGAINST EX-SERGEANT-AT-

Thompson, ex-Sergeant-at-Arms of the House of Representatives, was given to the jury in the Circuit Court, Judge MacArthur, at two p. m. At half-past three o'clock. Judge MacArthur left word that if the jury came in by seven o'clock to send for him, or otherwise to return a sealed verdict. About seven o'clock the jury sent for the Judge, and the foreman an-THE TABERNACLE, W. W. District Attorney Corkhill, who was present, bad the jury polled, and the verdict was recorded. The district attorney then gave notice of a motion for a new trial on the ground that the damages were excessive, and tor rrors in law on the part of the court. The law in the case having been settled by the Supreme Court of the United States the only thing in this court was for the jury to assess the damamount, and Mr. Corkhill, for the defendant, at once gave notice of a motion for a new trial. Mr. Kilbourn to recover damages for 45 days' imprisonment, inflicted upon him in 1876, for alleged sponse to a demand made by the committee convestigation. He was committed to the custody of the Sergeant-at-Arms on the 14th of March, 1876, and confined in the jail until released through a writ of habeas corpus by Chief Justice Cartter. On gainst Speaker Kerr, since deceased, and the other House of Representatives. To these pleas the plaintiff demurred and the demurrers were overruled. The case then went to the Supreme Court of the United States, and that court affirmed the udgment below as to all the parties, except Thompson, and remanded the case. So the suit ended yesterday was against Thompson alone.

WHAT MR. KILBOURN SAYS. Meeting Mr. Hallet Kilbourn this morning, a verdict.

"Well, I expected to get the entire amount of the damages. The amount named was what I thought was justly due me, and I supposed that the jury would award it." "What will be the next step?"

"I am sure I don't know. To-day is the anniversary of my release by Chief Justice Cartter. Six years ago there was a great complaint made by members of Congress about it, and there was talk of impeaching the chief justice. Then when the Supreme Court decided in my favor there was another howl, and I suppose now that people will find fault with this verdict. But through all these six years, in spite of opposition, the record has been making up in my favor, and I shall be ready for the next whenever it comes." WHAT EX-SERGEANT-AT-ARMS THOMPSON SAYS. "What will be the next step, colonel?" asked a STAR reporter of ex-Sergeant-at-Arms John G. Thompson.

"We will ask Judge Cartter to grant the case a rehearing, and if this is refused then we will take it, on a bill of exceptions, to the Court in Banc. After that, of course, I don't know what will be done."

"Where you surprised at the verdict?"
"Yes, at the amount, and I think that the other side were, too. They would have been satisfied, I udge, with a verdict of $25,000 or $30,000, but the ry must have reached this amount by the system "putting down," which is in vogue all over the country. Each juror puts down the amount he thinks proper, and then the whole is added up and divided by 12. I think it is the wrong method, but still it is done." House of Representatives. On motion of Mr. Randall a resolution was adopted in the House to-day requesting the Commissioner of Agriculture to inform the House whether any portion of the United States is adapted to the growth of the cinchona.

MR. ROBINSON'S PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY. Mr. Robinson (New York), rising to a parliamen tary inquiry, referred to the fact that a resolution relative to the American citizens imprisoned to Ireland had not yet been reported by the commit tee on foreign affairs, although the rules required that it should be reported back within one week. It was now three months since the resolution had been referred to the committee, and he inquired how long the House was to wait before the committee reported in regard to the American citizens still held in jail by an impudent and overpowering monarch.

The Speaker held that that was not a privileged question; whereupon Mr. Robinson, of New York, moved to discharge the committee from the further consideration of the resolution, and Mr. Cox, of New York, sustained the motion.

Mr. Dunnell, a member of the committee on foreign affairs, defended the committee from the criticims passed upon it, declaring that the English government was disposed to accede to the demands of our government. In the Senate yesterday a bill was reported favorably from the committee on education and labor to aid in the establishment and temporary support of common schools. The bill for the improve ment of the Mississippi river was further discussed. The resolution of Mr. Vance for the appointment of three Senators to investigate charges and complaints against internal revenue officials in the sixth collection district of North Carolina, with power to compel attendance of witnesses, etc., was adopted.

The House at its session last night passed 20 pension bills, and a number of bills donating condemned cannon for monumental purposes, including thirty condemned cannon for a monument to Gen. The District of Columbia committee of the House will not call up the Potomac flats bill on Monday. It is now the intention to have the Senate first act upon the bill pending in that body. Drum this morning: break in Arizona yet; but from the several dispatches which have reached here it appears that Juh, the chief of the Chiricahuas, which broke out last September, returned from Mexico secretly on the 17th with some sixty men of his band to San Carlos, and compelled the remainder of his people. under Loco, consisting of forty men and three hundred women and children, to leave on the night of the 18th, and when leaving they killed the Indian chief of police Sterling and the police sergeant. They passed the branch agency, some eighteen miles distant, and proceeded towards Fort Thomas, killing ten men, women and children parties, and in the Circuit Court pleas were filed on Eagle creek. A number of other citizens in that the imprisonment was in the power of the same valley are reported killed. Col. Schofield, in command of two troops from Thomas, went in pursuit on the 19th. Part of this command, under Lieut. Sands, overtook the fugitives and pursued them for three miles, but, unaccountably getting out of ammunition and food, returned to Fort Thomas. The Indians yesterday were reported along Ash creek and Eagle creek. Capt. Gordon, 6th cavalry, with 119 men, including an Indian scout company, left Fort Grant on the 20th, with fifteen days' rations, by way of Stockgo out by Eagle creek or Clifton. Lieut. Col. Forsyth, with four troops of 4th cavalry, is at Separ, N. M., and will co-operate. All the troops in the territory have been informed of the outbreak, and all that can leave their posts are reported en route to intercept the hostiles and protect exposed settlements."

What district attorney corkhill, who appeared in the trial of the case as counsel for Mr. Thompson, said to-day that the judgment, which was excessive and contrary to the judge's instructions, carried with it its own destruction; that he and his client felt no concern about it; that the judgment would allow it to stand, and that no Congress would allow it to stand, and that no Congress would allow it to stand, and that no Congress would appropriate such a sum. He thought the verdict was a hoax—a fancy verdict—rendered for the purpose of vindicating Mr. Kilbourn. He understood, he said, that the jury had solemnly agreed not to let anyone know how they reached the verdict. The motion for a new trial will be filed honday.

THE STAR ROUTE CASES. IN THE CRIMINAL COURT

JUDGE WYLIE SUSTAINS THE MOTION TO QUASH THE RERDELL INDICTMENT.

To-day was set in the Criminal Court for the argument of motions in the cases of certain persons indicted in the straw bond cases. The government was represented by District Attorney Corkhill, Mr. Merrick and Mr. Ker, and the defendants by R. G. Ingersoll, Jere. Wilson, Enoch Totten, A. B. Williams, C. Pelham, W. H. Smith and Messrs. W. H. Turner, M. C. Rerdell, A. E. Boone, 8. G. Cabell and J. N. Minnix, of defendants, were also present.

THE MOTION TO QUASH IN RERDELL'S CASE. The first motion taken up was that in the case of Rerdell, to quash on the ground of misnomer, his name being Montford C. Rerdell and not M. C. Rerdell, as indicted. Mr. Williams read a number of authorities in support of the motion.

The court, before Mr. Williams concluded, said he need not read further, for he was satisfied that it had always been the practice to set out the full name, and he saw no reason for a departure in this instance. Mr. Ker maintained that all that was necessary was to set out the name by which the party was known, and they would prove in this case that Rerdell had always been known as M. C. Rerdell

The court said that the law required the Christian name to be set out, and in case it was not the indictment should set out why it was not. Unless it so appeared he would hold the indictment to be

The only correct course he submitted was for the court to overrule the motion and let it come out at the trial whether this was the name. Mr. Merrick said that he was insisting that this objection should be made by plea in indictment. The court said that the law presumed every person to have a Christian name, and if a man chose to use initials when indicted the whole name should be used or there should be an averment. Mr. Merrick said that in this country church an state were separate, and even the courts did no recognize the Christian name in a religious sense A man here may call his son what he the name of a heathen god would not be called Christian name. The Court.—A man in my neighborhood, to shor his contempt for Christianity, called one of his

Mr. Merrick.—We will not get into a theological discussion with the colonel. Decision of Judge Wylie.

The court said it felt a great reluctance in qusinitials without explaining that those initials wre Christian name without his second name, buthe cannot be indicted by his second name without is set out in the indictment that that is the name by which he usually passes, the indictment is not demurrable. If the grand jury say a man's name is not known and describe him sufficiently to identity him, that is sufficient explanation. If an indictment describes a man merely by his initals, it ought to set out why the Christian namewas omitted. Judge Wylie described the different oceasions under which motions to quash or pless of abatement were proper in reference to names The pleader, in drawing up the long indictment had probably overlooked the necessity imposed by the law to explain why the Christian namewas not given. If that explanation had been made on the face of the indictment the motion to quash would have been overruled undoubtedly. If the pleader had used a Christian name, however erroneous the name, the objection would not have appeard on the face of the indictment, and a motion to quas could not be sustained, but a plea of abatement sustained by affidavit could. The truth was that initials were no name at all. The cour had seen no authority at all different from the views he expressed except it be section 102 in Wharton's Criminal Practice, eighth edition, which was in effect that where names were ordinarily written with abbreviation it would be sufficient for the purposes of indictment. This was undoubtedly so, but the indictment must show that such is written ordinarily in such abbrevi-

Behind these reasons, the court said, there was another reason dwelt upon by the authorities, and that is, a party indicted for crime, in case of a former trial, ought to be able to show by the record that he had previously been tried. If Rerdell about he tried and acquitted on this indutment should be tried and acquitted on this indictment and afterwards reindicted by his full name, how could he prove by the record that he had been previously tried for the same alleged offense? The court was of opinion that it was not safe todepart from the ancient ways, and that he had no authority to do so. In his views of the law, therefore the motion to quash this indictment as to Rerdel When Judge Wylie finished delivering his opinion, at 12:15 o'clock, most of the counsel and defendants in the star-route cases left the court, together with Mr. Rerdell. Mr. Pelham then called attention to the so-called straw-bond cases, referring to the fact that Kate M. Armstrong was indicted in two cases as K. M.

Mr. Merrick said they would look into the papers, and if the facts existed as represented, of course the indictment should have to be quashed. The Case of Mr. Boone Mr. Walter H. Smith, as counsel for Mr. A. E Boone, then proceeded to argue upon riotions to quash the indictments charging conspracy and tary Blaine or any other government official with subornation of perjury against Mr. Boor After some discussion, as there were questions raised which the prosecution wished to argue, the case went over, with the understanding that the defence should notify counsel for the prosecution when they would call up the motion for argument. The court said he could not hear the notions before Saturday.

The court then adjourned till Monday morn-

THE PERUVIAN COMPANY.

The Men who got in on "the Ground Floor" and How Much it Cost Them- ore in sight is said to be $700,000. The Mysterious Senator.

A Philadelphia letter to the N. Y. Herald Bays: "This city, as has been shown in a previous letter, is the home of the Peruvian company. Here dwelt the discoverer of the Cochet claim, Peter Hevener, and here are to be found a large share of the victims of the alleged company. Peter Hevetioning the indictment, but he had always had ner, alias Jones, has a long and eventful history, the opinion that an indictment setting out only and your correspondent has traced it from 1853, when he assumed the name of Jones, to date. Prior commonly used was defective. He thought all he to that time he had been in Australia. All of his authorities lay down the rule, and some even giso many partners who are yet living have supplied far as to say that a man can be indicted by is facts about him. John Duttendorf, who was his coadjutor in the "Suerte" game; Dr. Windell, a Callao companion; Mr. Flucher, his partner in a sawmill at Callao; officials at Catasauqua and Easton, Pa.; Senor Laranjaga, of Lima; his part-ner in Salt Lake City, and many others supply links in Mr. Hevener's history. One of his former companions, James B. Mantrop, has been thrown into a dungeon by Hevener and is now leading the life of a philosopher at Moyamensing. Through the courtesy of the superintendent of that establishment your correspondent this afternoon called upon James B. Mantrop to ascertain what additional facts could be obtained in reference to the Peruvian company. Being asked to give the list of the original stockholders of the Peruvian company, he said that the half of the claim was divided into ten twentieths, and these shares were purchased with cash in most cases. He then gave the list asked for, as follows:

from New Jersey, one share of a twentieth, for which Miss Fanny S. Crosby, Mrs. J. Irwin, Miss which he paid $10.000. Martin, Fuller & Co. (Joseph Ella Reese, Mrs. Phœbe Riddell, Miss Annie L. which he paid $10,000. Martin, Fuller & Co. (Joseph Martin, city treasurer of Philadelphia, and Alfred Fuller), No. 73 Philadelphia Stock Yark, onetwentieth, for which they paid $10,000. George Curry, residing at No. 1503 Girard avenue, onetwentieth, for which he paid $4,500. George H. West, No. 1722 Girard avenue, one-twentieth; amount paid unknown. Howard Jones, of Philadelphia, one-twentieth; amount paid unknown. south 7th street, one-twentieth and one-fortieth. For this share and a-half Dr. Stewart paid, perhaps, $12,000, not more. James Montgomery, of this city, one-twentleth; all that he retained from the claim which he bought of me. Jacob R. Shipherd, 19 Spruce street, New York, one-twentieth; which he received from Montgomery; considera-tion unknown. James B. Mantrop (that's me), onehalf of my share to Franklin Stewart. Here is the agreement. [Mantrop here exhibited a document bearing Dr. Stewart's signature, in which he (Stewart) agreed to buy one-fortieth, and to pay a stated sum for the same.] But the whole trick was to sell the stock at the best figure and to get

"These were the men who got in on the ground "I suppose so. But most of us knew it was a fraud and a swindle; some hoped it was, and the others bought the bauble." "So, then, Senator McPherson is "the mysterious Senator' who has been referred to so often?"

"I suppose he is. McPherson worked very hard in the matter, and I know of a good many men whom he talked to very earnestly on the subject," said Mantrop.

"Did he believe in the claim?" "Yes, I think he did; at least at first he did." BLAINE AND HURLBUT NOT STOCKHOLDERS. "Do you know of anything connecting ex-Secrene deal?" was asked.

"I do know that an attempt was made to approach Blaine, even with stock to a large amount, but it failed miserably. The man who made the offer was insulted on the spot and almost kicked out of the Secretary's presence. "Indeed, and how do you know this?"

"Because I was the man." "And the late Minister Hurlbut, what about "He was offered stock also, to my certain knowledge, but he spurned the offer indignantly." GENERAL GRANT'S QUARTER MILLION.

"Were there any others who were afterward supplied with stock?" "Yes, indeed, a large number; but it is too laughable to talk seriously about," said Mantrop, convulsed with mirth. "There are some big fish in that net yet, if the Congressional committee can only land them."

"Who, for instance?"

"Well, General Grant is the owner of $250,000 worth of stock of the great Peruvian company," and Mantrop laughed until the corridor rang with his wild guffaws.

"Did he pay full price for it?"

"No," with some hesitation.

"Was the money raised for him in New York by some public-spirited citizens—exactly the amount.

some public-spirited citizens—exactly the amount, I believe, of $250,000—invested in Peruvian company stock? Answer quick."

"I don't know where the money came from. I know that he paid the first instalment of $5,000 on allotment, but what he has paid since I do not know of personal knowledge."

PAID COUNSEL.

"Were others in that you can name?" I asked. "I should say I could name them. Boutwell Blair, and four others were only hired counsel They were not stockholders-unless Shipherd slyly paid them in stock. Conkling was not employed as counsel and never received a dollar in money or stock. They were afraid to approach him in any stock. They were afraid to approach him in any but a purely professional way."

"You say you have letters and documents bearing upon this subject?"

"I have letters from Huribut, for instance, that will clear his name entirely. How they came into my possession doesn't matter just now. I am expecting to be called to Washington before the committee after Hevener takes the stand. The charge against me here amounts to nothing; but I am a foreigner and friendless on this side of the ocean, and must wait my time. There will be a built in a china shop, sure enough, when I get loose."
